Death Rattle Literary / Artmuseum.edu

Death Rattle Writers Festival is a non-profit organization that is dedicated to providing public platforms to underserved writers locally, regionally, and online by providing the public with free access to quality literary programming throughout the year.

Death Rattle yearly programming focuses on the bi-annual publication of Oroboro, our online literary magazine featuring poetry, fiction, and comics; the Penrose Poetry Prize, Oroboro’s poetry contest bringing in esteemed guest judges and awarding cash prizes for poetry by LGBTQIA+ poets; The Spill, bi-monthly, open-mic live story-telling events with a featured writer and theme; quarterly educational workshops for adults and children, and multiple live readings with nationally recognized keynote poets alongside established and emerging local artists.

We'll be partnering with our board member, head designer and comics creator @artmuseum.edu_ (instagram). They design all of our in-print comic, poetry, and fiction collections for online and in-print, limited edition broadside prints, as well as showcasing their own sequential poetry comic work.

Sarah Pincock (they/them) is a transgender visual artist and illustrator working in Nampa, Idaho. Their work focuses on writing sequential poetry and visual icons that explore narratives with transgender and fabulist renderings of mythic iconography, archetypes and storytelling, blurring the line drawn between society and the folktale.

They have had their comic work published in ANMLY Issue #29 and FORGE Art Mag, Cobra Milk, Scratch Magazine, Mountain Bluebird Magazine; was a runner up for the Short Run Dash Grant 2019, received an Artist Grant through the Idaho Commission on the Arts to create Risograph print work in 2021, and have exhibited their comic / bookmaking work at Vancouver Art Book Fair 2020 and in 2021 as a featured artist. They are an organizer and head-designer with Idaho literary non-profit Death Rattle Literary and are co-head editor for the attached literary journal, Oroboro.

Entheogen Publications

Entheogen Publications was created due to a failed endeavor to become a screenwriter. I was accepted to the master's program at the New York Film Academy in California, but due to some personal reasons, I decided not to go. I've submitted some screenplays to national competitions, and while I didn't find success there, it did lead me down the path of graphic novels. My projects are funded on Kickstarter, and I've raised nearly 100k for their development over two different series. I have another series in the works and hope to launch that within the next 4-6 months. This will be a dark humor sword and sorcery tale. My projects have a lot of subtext to them and make no bones about the philosophy within them.

Fire's Flamin' Art

Fire's Flamin' Art has fun art pieces that go from cute to scary. Each art piece shows off the different ways Fire likes to express herself.

The Geeked Out Ninjas Cosmakers

MJ and Shawn, known for their bigger builds, are competitive cosplayers hailing from Boise, Idaho. Every year since MJ and Shawn have been together since 2007, they have made their own Halloween costumes for their Taekwondo school's annual Halloween party for kids to enjoy. But it wasn't until 2014 at a comic convention in Boise, ID where they first competed in a cosplay competition. MJ and Shawn were walking around the convention floor in their Wolverminion and Agnes Cosplay (Despicable Me) and were asked to partake in the cosplay competition. They placed 2nd in the novice division. Thereafter they had realized that they had the potential to build and compete at cosplay competitions. Since then, they have competed and placed in numerous cosplay competitions locally and other states as well.

Girl A Go-Go Designs

I am Robyn of Girl A Go-Go Designs and I'm a self-taught sewing enthusiast. I specialize in creating fun, must-have items out of up-cycled materials. In using unwanted goods, I help support local thrift stores and the charities they represent, as well as trying to keep unused materials out of the landfills. I want to make a positive impact to the environment. Since my fabric sources are very limited, each one of my items is unique. I like the thought of making one-of-a-kind items, rather than making a multitude of the same thing.

I'm originally from Vancouver, B.C., but I've been living in Boise for a number of years. I'm married with three kids and a myriad of pets.

Most of Johami's drawings are usually fan art or about herself and things that she dreams. She likes using the color pink in most of her drawings and uses pastel colors most of the times. Her art style is influenced by anime and cartoons.

Julia Green Illustration

I am an illustrator and surface pattern designer in Nampa, Idaho. Over the years I've created artwork for a wide variety of projects like album artwork and editorial illustration, patterns for children's rain boots, toy designs, and children's books. My medium of choice is working in Adobe Photoshop, Fresco, and Illustrator. I am heavily inspired by all of the Nickelodeon I consumed as a 90s kid and illustration styles from the 1950s and 1960s. My art has been described as a mix of soft feelings and humor. When I'm not drawing or snuggling my cats, you can find me building fancy homes in the Sims or terraforming and talking to cutie animals in Animal Crossing.

MAGIC ART WERX

Zach Woolsey is an artist and illustrator from the Nampa/Treasure Valley area. He is known for work in the music industry and for Topps Card Company and Dynamite Entertainment as a sketch card artist for Star Wars, MLB, Walking Dead, KISS and many others. His most recent work can be found in the new art book for Hannibal the TV series courtesy of Printed in Blood Publications. He enjoys that passion and rush that art provides while working on portraits, comics, merchandise design, or any number of related projects. As a graduate from Boise State University with degrees in Visual Art and Illustration as well as education from College of Western Idaho, Art Instruction International (Minnesota), and Francisco Marroquian University (Guatemala) it was here he was able to refine and rediscover his talent for art into a professional artist. Using mixed media of inks, paint, watercolor, and pencils are how many of his works are conceived. Influences from life experience, family, friends, music, comics, vintage illustrations, and art history all come together to create much of the work you see today.

MakeSmithy

Shanelle Hess started as a cake decorator for over 10 years. However, as she sadly saw all of her creations ruthlessly devoured, she realized her need to create art that was more lasting. Thus, MakeSmithy was born! At the Smithy, Shanelle and her husband James 3D print all things nerdy and cute, ranging from custom hand painted tabletop miniatures to articulated fidgets and everything in between.

Mini Tonics

Mini Tonics is a small business focused on making decorative potions that are much like snow globes to fill the missing magic void that may be in your life. We offer a variety of potion sizes as well as some stickers! Our table is always more of an interactive one as we'll ask you to shake one of the potions to see what colors will swirl inside. Our favorite part? Watching everyone's faces light up.

Mitsuko Illustrations

My name is Mitsuko Lili. I was born and raised in Boise, Idaho and I have always enjoyed making art. I knew at an early age I wanted to draw and create work in a more deliberate way. I have a BFA in Illustration from Boise State University where I continued to learn a variety of mediums that I implement in my methods today. I enjoy learning new techniques and continue to practice and grow as an artist.

My work is constantly changing. I enjoy using bright colors and often include strategic lines, shapes, and complimentary designs. My art is careful and somewhat mathematic in how I start an idea on paper, yet the final can be described as fun and playful. I explore themes of nostalgia and seeking oneself that can be overlooked in the mundane of the everyday.

While my art aims to visualize a narrative related to practicing mindfulness, the purpose of my work is to center the viewer and find something that may have been missed upon first glance. In turn, the detail orientated nature of my art as well as the use of contrasting and vibrant colors is enticing, and it forces the viewer to look carefully and slowly. My art is associated with the present day, but my hope is to evoke a memory response from the viewer that may have been forgotten through time. I work with traditional mediums and printmaking techniques.

SPOOKY DINOSAUR

Spooky Dinosaur is the sobriquet of visual artist Nathan Veibell. As an eternal being going through his second play-through of life on Earth (gaining immortality his first time through) he reached the inevitable heat death of the universe, and time traveled back to the time of the dinosaurs. They were really fun, but now, after a millennia of goings on he is trying his hand at the artist life, doing whatever art comes to mind. Working in mostly in pen and ink, monsters and surreal works seem to be a favorite, things that ancient dark beings ask him to draw. He has a comic in the works and is hoping to continue this path even further before that heat death thing happens.

The Geeked Out Ninjas Cosmakers (MJ and Shawn)

MJ and Shawn, known for their bigger builds, are competitive cosplayers hailing from Boise, Idaho. Every year since MJ and Shawn have been together since 2007, they have made their own Halloween costumes for their Taekwondo school's annual Halloween party for kids to enjoy. But it wasn't until 2014 at a comic convention in Boise, ID where they first competed in a cosplay competition. MJ and Shawn were walking around the convention floor in their Wolverminion and Agnes Cosplay (Despicable me) and were asked to partake in the cosplay competition. They placed 2nd the novice division. There after they had realized that they had the potential to build and compete at cosplay competitions. Since then they have competed and placed in numerous cosplay competitions, including Best in Show at Wizard World Boise in 2018.

Winterblade1980's Books Treasures and More LLC

I love art in nearly all its many forms. Pens and pencils were my main focal point while growing up and were what I could afford. I was never without either. I'm a huge fan of Bob Ross. I grew up watching him almost every day. Besides art, I also love sci-fi, fantasy, gardening, adventure and history. Much of my young life, I grew up surrounded by criticism and apprehension. Being ADHD and severely dyslexic made life difficult, so I drew inward. I put much of my focus into worlds outside the veil of reality, seeing my dreams as portals to other realms and universes, keeping them to myself...until now.

I currently have two books published, A Nightmare's Point of View and Shadow Side. This year I have a new home and a new book coming out! The Crystal Prison (A Nightmare's Point of View's second book) coming out this year and published by Green Ave Books.
